SHOPLAB – Oberentfelden

The new Acoustic Divider Vario creates areas of calm in an open-space design.

Starting Point

SHOPLAB, an interdisciplinary centre of excellence, thrives on its open-plan room structure, also containing a space where seminars and workshops are organised. To be able to provide a quiet atmosphere for seminars despite the open design concept, the centre was looking for an acoustic and soundproofing curtain.

Solution

The interior designers came up with an unconventional solution. In an open-space design, Acoustic Divider Vario with TONY enables cooking workshops and concentrated conferences all at the same time. Thanks to its special colour, the curtain is an eye-catcher and becomes a key element of the room's composition.
